“Diverse weights are an abomination to the Lord, and dishonest scales are not good.”(Proverbs 20:23)

“The only reason Barack Obama wants his own election commission is so he can hold elections the Chicago Way.” –Dave

In his latest tyrannical attack on the United States Constitution, Barack Obama has signed an executive order establishing a “Presidential Commission of Election Administration.” As reported by Tony Lee at Breitbart.com’s Big Government, “Election law expert and former Department of Justice official J. Christian Adams labeled such a Commission a “solution in search of a problem.”

Many are describing this constitutional power grab as “a move to nationalize elections.” This is exactly the type of power move by the executive branch that many anti-Federalists warned against during the ratification of the Constitution. If the Obama Administration is indeed concerned with improving “the experience of all voters,” then perhaps they would answer the following questions:

1. Why did they not prosecute the clear case of voter intimidation by the New Black Panther Party in Philadelphia?
2. Why did they not establish voter-assistance offices on military bases as Congress appropriated the Pentagon to do, thereby disenfranchising military members?
3. Why are they ignoring a study, reported on by Breitbart, “by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology that found the average wait to vote last November on Election Day was 13 minutes, compared to 20 minutes in early voting locations?”

Barack Obama has had a long history of having a problem with the US Constitutions and states powers. The Constitution clearly enumerates elections at the state level.

FROM THE FOUNDERS

The Anti-Federalists greatly feared a strong federal government because they were highly protective of the powers of the states. One way that states are able to maintain power is through holding elections. This grab for power by Barack Obama would have definitely been met with great resistance by them and the rest of the Founding Fathers.

Before the existence of express political compacts it was reasonably implied that the magistrate should govern with wisdom and Justice, but mere implication was too feeble to restrain the unbridled ambition of a bad man, or afford security against negligence, cruelty, or any other defect of mind. It is alledged that the opinions and manners of the people of America, are capable to resist and prevent an extension of prerogative or oppression; but you must recollect that opinion and manners are mutable, and may not always be a permanent obstruction against the encroachments of government; that the progress of a commercial society begets luxury, the parent of inequality, the foe to virtue, and the enemy to restraint; and that ambition and voluptuousness aided by flattery, will teach magistrates, where limits are not explicitly fixed to have separate and distinct interests from the people, besides it will not be denied that government assimilates the manners and opinions of the community to it. Therefore, a general presumption that rulers will govern well is not a sufficient security. Anti-Federalist Papers, Cato Letter V, published in The New-York Journal, November 22, 1787

The anti-federalists knew that a corrupt man with the presidential powers awarded to him in the US Constitution would be able to usurp the powers of the states and ultimately the people.

These men were oft ridiculed by the Federalists as being hyper-sensitive over the powers of royalty and making unsupported accusations.

One can only wonder what both groups would think of the current man in the Oval Office.

FROM THE PULPIT

“The people have equal reason to mourn when wicked men are preferred by their rulers, and distinguished by their special favors. In times of confusion and degeneracy, wicked and designing men, obtain promotion; and of times such persons are entrusted with the more important concerns of the public, who were never possessed of virtue and economy, sufficient to transact their own. From a “Sermon on the Day of General Election,” David Parsons, A.M. Pastor of A Church in Amherst, Massachusetts - 05/28/1788

Be there no doubt that Barack Obama will prefer wicked men on his election commission. The term “wicked” may seem harsh until we look at its definition: “evil or morally bad in principle or practice.” Would it not be considered evil or morally bad in principle or practice if by executive fiat a panel of men and/or women hand-picked by Mr. Obama overturned an election result?

We need not wonder of Mr. Obama and Democrats’ intentions when it comes to “voting discrepancies.”

To win elections through “voting discrepancies” such as found in Pennsylvania during the 2012 presidential election is the work of “wicked and designing men.”

Any efforts by law-abiding American voters try to cleanse the voter rolls or require voter identification is met with cries from the Left of voter disenfranchisement and racism. This is done for one reason and one reason only. Those protesting intend to cheat.

It is high time for the pulpits across America to step up as did Pastor Parsons did 225 years and express speak out against these “time of confusion and degeneracy.”

Would to God that church members volunteer in mass to be poll watchers and workers to ensure the integrity of our elections. Who better than Bible-believing, God-fearing men and women to step in the gap for righteousness?

However, understand that if pastors and Christians to attempt to take a lead role in overseeing our elections, do not be surprised if persecution comes from claims of violating the fictitious separation of church and state to getting run out of your own party if you are a Democrat speaking out against voter fraud.

No matter the cost, we must fight this corruption. Turn the page for some suggestions.

TO THE STREETS

WE the People were charged by John Quincy Adams thusly:

“Posterity: you will never know how much it has cost my generation to preserve your freedom. I hope you will make good use of it.”

Will we make good use of our freedom by defending the most fundamental and sacred right we have as American citizens; our vote?

Barack Obama signed this executive order with very little fanfare and almost no coverage by the media. Liberals are good at sliding things behind our backs while chasing the bright shiny thing. This is one tyrannical act that we cannot let pass in the night. We need to be on the watch for this and counter Obama’s every move with this commission. Here are some suggestions:

1. Contact your representative and senators to see if they are aware of this commission, and if so, what they intend to do to stop it, if anything.
2. Contact the White House and voice your opposition to this commission.
3. Call your local talk radio show to see if the hosts and listeners are aware of this commission.
4. Write a letter to the editor of your local newspaper to voice your opposition to this commission and explain clearly the reasons you oppose it.
